

Supervision Group for Occupational Therapists and OTAs who work with children or adults who have been impacted by Developmental Trauma

TWO SPACES AVAILABLE

ABOUT THIS SUPERVISION GROUP

We run an online supervision group for Occupational Therapists and OTAs who work with children or adults who have been impacted by trauma and attachment ruptures.

Individuals and families who have survived trauma during their early months and years often experience complex and deeply painful struggles in multiple areas of their life. Their window of tolerance is limited, and small every-day moments can trigger overwhelming experiences of fear, tipping them into fight, flight, freeze or collapse survival responses.

This supervision group is a safe, contained and nurturing space for OTs to bring their clinical questions, and the personal impact of working with such profound trauma in others.

LEARNING AIMS

Trauma informed OTs are an increasing group of specialists and our impact and value in this sector is growing. In this group, we will:

- Reflect on how developmental trauma impacts the development of the eight sensory systems
- Delve into the complexities of survival responses and attachment patterns and their effect on relationships and everyday lives.
- Explore how to enhance sensory environments, ours and the clients that we work with, to promote wellbeing.
- Reflect on how we can support those (including ourselves) who work with children who have survived developmental trauma to co-regulate -one of the most powerful tools we have.

As a group we can move between themed discussion and individual client discussions, depending on the needs of the participants.

GROUP COMMITMENT

Participants will be invited to sign up for 6 monthly supervision sessions at a time. The group will be 'closed' so that we can create safety and predictability within the space.

THIS SUPERVISION IS SUITABLE FOR:

Any OT or OTA who works with children or adults who have experienced developmental trauma, loss or adversity.

ABOUT THE SUPERVISOR

The group will be led by Candia Slaughter, one of our specialist paediatric Occupational Therapists and supervisors, who has many years experience working with children and young people and their parents/carers. Candia began her work life at ground level as a role-emerging OT in a Childrens charity in inner-city London. She has since dedicated her time and energy into growing a specialist understanding in the impact of early trauma on children's sensory system. She is trained in Sensory Attachment Intervention (SAI) and uses this together with the Building Underdeveloped Sensorimotor Systems (BUSS) model to inform the interventions she offers to children and families at Beacon House. Candia's practise is also informed by Porge's Polyvagal theory and Perry's Neurosequential Model of Therapeutics; and she has a particular specialism in working with children who are adopted. You can read more about Candia here: www.beaconhouse.org.uk/team-members/candia-slaughter

ABOUT BEACON HOUSE

Candia is supported to offer supervision from within the Beacon House team. Beacon House is a specialist service offering assessment and therapeutic interventions to young people, families and adults who have experienced early trauma, loss and adversity. We are passionate about offering OT and therapy, training and supervision underpinned by trauma-informed values and ethics. You can read more about us here: www.beaconhouse.org.uk.
